DEATH OF DR. MANGUM.

[Editorial Correspondence.]

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 12th, 1890.— I have just heard of the death of my old and venerated friend, Rev. A. W. MAN-GUM, D. D., Professor of Mental and moral Philosophy at the University of the State. A better man, a more sincere Christian, a truer friend, and an honest man I never knew, and I had known him long and intimately. I enjoyed his counsel and his fatherly advice and his prayers, and they were of value to me. Outside of his immediate family, none of his friends will be more grieved at his untimely taking off. He has left to his family, to his church, and to the University which he loved and revered, the legacy of an honored name.

Dr. MANGUM's religion was of the earnest and uncompromising character. He was a believer in experimental religion, and could always say with confidence, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." His religion was his life, and it made his influence a factor for good in the circle in which he moved. He felt that it was not sufficient that his life be blameless.
He used his abilities and his influence to make men better. I remember, not a great while after his first stroke of paralysis, at New Bern, in December, 1888, receiving a letter from him, as he was getting better, which was full of expressions of strong faith in God.
He wrote as one whose faith was strong and whose hope was certain. He found his highest joy in a "life end with Christ in God," and in seeking to lead others to the living waters which he had tasted and which had made his life full of sweetness and joy.

Dr. MANGUM was a preacher of great usefulness and eloquence. I have heard him rise to an eloquence that no man could surpass, and seen him sway his congregation by the power of his oratory.
While a member of the Methodist Conference, he filled the best stations, preaching at Goldsboro, Greensboro, Charlotte, Raleigh and other points.
Wherever he lived, he was loved and esteemed. He was a man of scholarship, and man of learning rejoiced to wait upon his ministry; and the common people heard him gladly. He was severe in his denunciation of sin, but he never denounced the sinner, but loved him and showed his love in numberless ways.

His work at the University was such as to impress itself upon the pupils and to do them good. He was elected to a professorship upon the re-organization of the University in 1875 and had continuously been one of its faculty until failing health prevented his fulfilling his duties. He loved his work and was faithful in it. I never saw one of his students who did not have implicit confidence in his purity and sincerity.
They knew that he was true and that he was seeking to make them better morally and spiritually as well as intellectually. The influence of his teaching in the University and in the pulpit will live long, and of him, in the lives of those he has impressed, it may be said, "Though dead he yet speaketh." The lives of the boys who have gone out from the University will be purer and sweeter because of the truly influence of his pure life. Let us pray that his mantle will fall on one worthy to wear it.
J. D.

REV. A. W. MANGUM was born April 1, 1834, in Orange county. He was prepared for college at South Lowell Academy, Orange county, which, under the principals of Mr. JAMES A. DEAN, was widely and favorably known. He graduated at Randolph Macon College, in 1853, with first distinction. Early in life he exhibited a remarkable fluency of speech and power as a declaimer, and his father desired him to study law.
But before entering college he became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and an earnest Christian worker, and he began the study of theology soon after graduating, with a view to ministerial work. He joined the N. C. Conference, and took his first charge, as itinerant, in Halifax Co., in 1856. He was stationed at Chapel Hill in 1858, and during subsequent years, at Salisbury, Goldsboro, Charlotte, Raleigh, and other places.

In 1862, he became chaplain of the 6th N. C. Regiment.
He was stationed at the Raleigh church when, in 1875, he was elected to the professorship at the University which he held to the present time. In 1864 he married Miss Laura Overman, daughter of Mrs. Wm. Overman, of Salisbury. He leaves a wife and five children. He has done his work well.
He has been an influence for good. He has won the respect and confidence of all who have known him.

A SOLDIER'S HOME.

The people of North Carolina have again decorated the graves of the Confederate dead. Eloquent tongues have again spoken them "fair in death." Martial music has again awakened memories of their heroism. Beautiful women and lovely maidens have again decorated their graves with flowers. Fair words of admiration have again fallen upon sympathetic ears. We say "we have paid a tribute to their memory;" that "their deeds smell sweet and blossom in their dust;" and that "we have performed a sad duty to the departed." And we go to our homes feeling that our acts have been patriotic and highly commendable.

We have honored the dead. But what of the living?
They are in poor-houses—They are dependent upon private charity—they are forced to privations and hardships.
The State gives them a pittance—The State of North Carolina gives $3,000,000 a year to pension Federal soldiers and $80,000 a year to pension the poor soldiers of North Carolina. We cannot help that, but we can provide for the poor soldiers, and give them a comfortable home if we wanted to do so.

COL. J. M. HECK has given a large and ample house which could be easily turned into a Home for the disabled veterans. The Veterans Association last Fall employed an agent, Mr. M. O.
SHERILL, an excellent and popular ex-Confederate, who visited several places seeking to raise a sum sufficient to open the Home and give the comforts to the aged men who need help and kind care.
The responses to the appeals for the purpose of establishing a Home were so few and the amounts so insignificant that the association withdrew the agent from the field. The amounts subscribed were conditioned upon the opening of the Home, and have not been collected.

The following were the subscriptions:
Col. W. F. Beasley, Oxford, $100 00
J. S. Carr, Durham, 500 00
W. C. Stronach, Raleigh, 100 00
Gov. D. G. Fowle, Raleigh, 100 00
Col. W. L. Saunders, Raleigh, 100 00 Josephus Daniels, 100 00
Gen. T. F. Davidson, Asheville, 100 00
R. H. Battle, Raleigh, 30 00 Buckee & Busbee, Raleigh, 40 00
E. C. Smith, Raleigh, 50 00
Col. J. A. Gray, Greensboro, 100 00
Gov. A. M. Scales, Greensboro, 100 00
Col. A. B. Andrews, Raleigh, 100 00 Elias Carr, Old Sparta, 100 00
H. M. Cowan, Raleigh, 10 00
C. M. Roberts, Raleigh, 5 00
W. P. Batchelor, Raleigh, 5 00 A. D. Jones, Raleigh, 5 00
R. B. Roney, Raleigh, 75 00
Z. B. Vance, 100 00

Total, $1,820 00
The CHRONICLE is authorized to put
Mr. J. B. BONNER, of Aurora, Meantown County, down for $25 00. He is deeply interested in the opening of the Home, and will make his contribution larger if necessary. Let others send in contributions. The CHRONICLE will acknowledge all contributions in these columns, and turn over all amounts to the Treasurer of the association.

The failure throughout the quarter of a century to make provision for our needy veterans is a burning shame and a reflection upon our boasted veneration for the brave men who wore the gray.
We are not rich in the South or in North Carolina, but every day we spend enough in foolishness and gewgaws to fit up the Home and day by day to sus-tain it.

Are the people of North Carolina content to do nothing except frame cheap words of praise of the soldiers? Are they content to have the disgrace of failure to do their duty forever perpetuated? Are they content to see old veterans linger and die in the poor-houses of the State? The CHRONICLE does not believe it, but unless we open the Home the world will be forced to believe that our love and admiration are not deeper than fine phrases, and the world will be justified in so believing.

On a few days ago a veteran whom Time had not dealt with kindly, wrote and made application for a place in the Home. He had read about the generous gift of COL. HECK, and he supposed that the people of the State would certainly furnish the Home and open it.
Mr. W. O. STRONACH, secretary, was forced to write to him and tell him that there was no provision made to care for him in his declining years. He gave his best service when summoned by the State. In his old age the people of the State leave him to die in poverty. There is no sentiment about this. It is a cold, plain statement, and it carries with it the presentation of a duty that rests upon every patriotic citizen of the State.

What shall we do? The gentlemen who have already contributed ought to rally the people of the State, and the men and women ought to go to work enthusiastically to raise the money, and throw open the doors of a cheerful Home to the veterans who are still with us.
The people of the State ought to need no exhortation to contribute. The ladies in every town in the State ought to need no urging to hold a Fair and Festival in behalf of the Soldiers' Home. With an enthusiasm never before known we ought to go to work and have the Home opened by the first of October.

We hope Mr. JULIAN S. CARR, the patriotic President of the Association, will write his views for the CHRONICLE of the need of the home, and strike now while the people are reading the memorial addresses and decorating the soldiers' graves.

The Home must be opened!

A NEWSPAPER venture on a new scale for North Carolina will be started at Tarboro on the fifteenth of this month.
It is to be called Hyman and "devoted to the interests of the State," and will be issued from the office of the Tarboro Banner.

"It is intended, says the publisher, to make it a source of pleasure, amusement and of ultimate good to those who may favor it with their patronage."

We suppose that it will "fill a long-felt want, and make it so that we need have no more bachelors and old maids in the State."

THE INVITATIONS to the commencements this year are unusually beautiful and show the steady advance made in the engravers' and printers' art.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Judge C. C. Pool, who has been in Brazil as Private Secretary to Col. O. H.
Duckery, is in Elizabeth City.

Hon. John Manning is one of the greatest men, intellectually and otherwise, that exists in our country.—Jonesboro Leader.

Mrs. Emma G. Alderman, wife of Prof. E. A. Alderman, will be Lady Principal of Charlotte Female Institute.
There will be other additions of accomplished ladies to the faculty.

Senator Gorman, of Maryland, is quoted as saying, "We shall be compelled to take up a new man in 1892." This observation is said to have been drawn out in a recent interview in regard to the Cleveland-Dana controversy.

Mr. Donald W. Bain, State Treasurer, is on the Committee on Itinerary at the General Conference of the M. E.
Church, South, now in session at St.
Louis. He is a valuable member of that body, faithful and true to his trust in church as well as in State.

Mr. H. B. Hardy, the very successful and enterprising agent of the Raleigh STATE CHRONICLE, arrived in town Friday evening and remained here a few days. We are glad to know the CHRONI-CLE, both daily and weekly, is growing in popularity down this way. Ben did not fail to delight some of our people with his excellent music on the harmonica.—Greenville Reflector.

Sam Jones gets his harshest criticism from the pulpit. It seems that some people are a long time finding out that to one He gave ten talents and to others less. We have only one word about Sam Jones' stay in Charlotte: If he did nothing more than to raise $5,800 towards cancelling the debt on the Y. M. C.
A. building he did good and accomplished in one week what the combined religious fraternity had failed to accomplish in four years previous.

Senator Evans has almost as large a residence in Washington as he has in New York. He has three houses which he keeps open all the time—one at New York, one at Washington and one at Windsor, Vt. In each he has a library —almost the duplicate of the other two —filled with the best works of law, history, political economy, poetry and prose fiction. The Senator likes his comfort, and his ambition and satisfaction is to live like an English gentleman, on the luxurians and liberal scale, without any regard to the petty economies of life. It cannot cost him less than $100,- 000 a year to live.

A North Carolina Artist.

[Cor. of STATE CHRONICLE.]

HIGH POINT, N. C., May 10, 1890.— North Carolina has many men of which she has just cause to be proud.

All over the State can be found men with talents and genius enough to place them in the front ranks of their different professions in any State and gain for themselves national fame.

North Carolina has few men who have attained to much prominence as artists.
It seems as if High Point is about to come to the front with a man to fill the vacancy. Mr. D. L. Clark, for many years a resident of this place, and having made portrait painting a life-time study, has recently painted a picture which is gaining for him a reputation of which any painter might feel proud.
The painting to which we refer was for Judge Schenck, of Greensboro and is a life size portrait of his father.

Mr. Clark yesterday received the following letter from the Judge which speaks for itself:

The following is the letter:
GREENSBORO, N. C., May 8, '90.
MR. D. L. CLARK, My Dear Sir:—It is my duty to you to say something more about my father's portrait, painted by you and which I study every day.

The likeness is perfect; it is exact, expressive and natural.
As a work of art I have not seen its superior in all my travels. It grows in favor, in my eyes, every day and every one who sees it admires the picture.

Very sincerely your friend, D. SCHENCK.

KNOCKED THE SHERIFF OVER.

And Made a Bold But Futile Effort for Liberty.

(Goldsboro Dispatch.)

Willis Jordan, one of the Mount Olive burglars, was recently put in jail here.
When Mr. W. R. Parker, the deputy sheriff, went in to carry the prisoners their breakfast the other morning Jordan knocked the deputy over and ran out, and was making off when he was met near the big ditch by Dr. A. H. Jones, while being chased by Mr. Henry Grady on horseback. They overhauled him near the woods, knocked him over with a stick, and brought him back to prison.

Easy Enough.

It is easy enough to be prudent, When nothing tempts you to stray—When without or within no voice of sin Is luring your soul away.
But it is only a negative virtue Until it is tried by fire.
And the life that is worth the honor of earth.
Is the one that resists desire.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

"HARP" GUITARS.

Our sales of Guitars for the past thirty days has more than doubled those of the previous month.

During this week we will offer a special discount of ten per cent. on "Harp" Guitars.

The reason we do this is to get this guitar thoroughly known. To do this we have to get them in the hands of the public. Everybody should have one, and now is the time to save two or three dollars on it from the already low prices. We have a full and selected stock and every instrument is warranted.
